My name is Maura Leonard and I live within the voting areas of the SDUHSD. I am very interested in the Tan map, as I would love to see new Trustee areas incorporated within the district. It seems the most balanced along the coast, and it creates new voting areas in both the northern and southern ends of the district. I urge the current Board of Trustees to vote for the Tan map.

Thank you,
Maura Leonard

Dear CVRA Committee:

As a concerned voter of Carmel Valley, I have reviewed the Trustee Area Maps proposed for the San Dieguito Union High School District. I have a question relating to the Tan Map and a proposed recommendation for your consideration.

As currently shown in the Tan Map, homeowners in the pocket of Carmel Valley east of El Camino Real, north of Lansdale Drive and Del Mar Heights Road, and south of Gonzales Canyon, aka Del Mar Heights, are situated in Area 3. These homeowners are basically the ONLY residents of Carmel Valley not included in Area 4 or Area 5. If Del Mar Heights is not relocated into Area 4 and/or Area 5 these Carmel Valley residents would not have the opportunity to vote for Carmel Valley candidates from Area 4 or Area 5 and would have a substantially reduced chance of running a successful campaign themselves.

Therefore, would it make more sense to include Del Mar Heights into Area 4 and/or Area 5?

Please consider this change to the Tan Map. Notably, Areas 4 and 5 currently have the largest negative deviations from ideal and Area 3 has a positive deviation from ideal. So Areas 4 and 5 could in the aggregate accommodate all or at least a portion of Del Mar Heights and offer these residents better opportunities for representation, which I understand is the purpose of the CVRA.

With this change I believe the Tan Map is the best map option.

Thank you,

Darryl Hall

Hello,

I have reviewed all the plans that the board has been considering for the new trustee voting districts. I cannot attend the meeting but wanted to let you know that I favor the Blue 1 proposal. I think that that plan best reflects the voting needs of each district.

Thank you,

I think the purple or blue 1 look the best, in terms of trying to keep neighborhoods together.

My question is about population balance now and in 10-15 years, based on projected development. Which map will keep the districts closest to the same size now and in the near future, based on planned development?

Thanks,

Howdy Dr. Whiting-

The maps all split up PHR and otherwise dilute the voting power of Carmel Valley and PHR, along with the Asian ethnic groups in these areas (a California Voting Rights Act consideration). My guess is the District's consultant is focused on demographics (race and population) and nothing about communities of interest, but in the end did not properly address ethnic groups, pursuant to CVRA. Only the Orange Map keeps PHR together. Carmel Valley is somewhat lumped together, but not entirely. A better map would create two districts, with one better creating a community of interest for Carmel Valley and another for PHR. Both would probably need to incorporate other areas for population balance, but need to better relate to communities of interest (like we did for City of San Diego Council re-districting). We have enough ethnic diversity in CV and PHR to justify these two districts. Everywhere else in the District is basically white, except some Latino clusters. The voting consultant should look to group Latinos together, which can be done via a third district capturing Latino clusters in Solana Beach and Encinitas neighborhoods near I-5, leaving heavy Asian CV and PHR as separate districts.

Bottomline is that we need a CV dominated district and a PHR dominated district to ensure political representation in balance with North County Coastal areas and to provide for Asian representation. Doing this should comply with the California Voting Rights Act.

Can you spread the word until I have time to do so? More information here: <http://www.sduhsd.net/About-SDUHSD/School-Board/CVRA/index.html>. We need to move on this ASAP, as the Board will want to approve maps in early December to presumably beat the lawsuit deadline, but that must not be a reason to adopt a bad map.

I'm copying key District staff too. A reminder to District staff that we worked to support Prop AA and Prop C of November 2010, both of which supported moving forward with PTMS. We also helped to resolve Subdivision Map issues with the City of San Diego for PTMS and led the Community Park design process adjacent to PTMS. In short, we expect changes to the map that balance community of interest needs with ethnic empowerment, pursuant to CVRA.

Thanks.

To: CVRA@sduhsd.net

Dear SDUHSD,

The proposed districts look a bit gerrymandered. I would propose taking the five middle school boundaries as a starting point and then slightly moving the boundaries to make the districts even for population. When moving across a middle school boundary line one should respect major city, community and geographical boundaries. I would expect that some of the current trustees might wind up in the same districts. That is ok and would show that the districts were not drawn to maintain the current board in place.

Sincerely,

Scott Wooden
